a celebratory announcement graced the 76th and Ashland corridor, as Chicago Mayor Richard M. Daley and Alderman Latasha Thomas (D-17) joined Walmart associates and several other civic and community stakeholders to publicly announce the opening of several Walmart stores opening as early as the Fall of 2011 and as late as the Spring of 2013.

It is expected that these new stores will create approximately 1,000 new jobs and about 200 construction jobs as part of a community agreement between Walmart and the City of Chicago.

This agreement, called the “Chicago Community Investment Partnership,” is a five year plan dedicated to opening several Walmart stores, creating approximately 10,000 jobs and 2,000 unionized construction jobs, and is expected to generate more than $500 million in sales and property taxes.

This agreement will also develop charitable partnerships worth an estimated $20 million.

Business Resource Network Graduates Inaugural Class

Auburn Gresham, Chicago Lawn, and Englewood Southwest side communities are brimming with sustainable businesses and entrepreneurs. As part of the City of Chicago's (in partnership with LISC/Chicago) Smart Communities Initiative, the Business Resource Network (of Auburn Gresham) aims to guide business owners towards technological competency as outlined in the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act's Broadband Technology Opportunities Program.

Business Resource Network manager, PiaShantee (center) points out specific elements of a free website for local business owners. ings and workshops that teach about the usage and knowledge of tools, techniques, crafts, systems or methods of organization in order to solve problems or serve some purpose.

This past February, a group of eleven business owners were the first to complete these training held at the Greater Auburn-Gresham Development Corporation (GADC). They met the course objectives and learn more ways to adopt and engage broadband resources to help sustain their businesses. For more information, please call (773) 723-3557.

ISU Joins Seniors at Thurgood Marshall Library

I CAME TO HELP HAND OUT BREAKFAST AND DO WHAT I COULD AND ENDED UP WALKING AWAY FEELING LIKE THE COMMUNITY HAD A BIGGER IMPACT ON ME THAN I ON IT. — ABBEY TURNER

Abbey Turner, an Illinois State University student visited the Thurgood Marshall Library for the Winter Blues Festival with her classmate, Chelsey. “What a blast! When we got there we served a great breakfast to the seniors in the community, whom the event was designed for,” said Turner.

A live blues band was getting the audience involved with catchy music.

“I became introduced to Auburn Gresham when I and the other CONNECT program participants from Illinois State went to visit our mentees at Westcott Elementary. This was my first community event since joining the CONNECT effort at ISU and it made me so excited to become more involved.

I came to help, hand out breakfast, and do what I could and ended up walking away feeling like the community had a bigger impact on me than I on it. I was more than impressed with the feeling of community I sensed.”

A couple of members of the community came to share opportunities, such as Kimberly Rudd’s Auburn Gresham Curves classes for women and representatives advocating for a Metra station in the neighborhood.

“I caught on to this excitement and am desperate for more opportunities to get involved! Auburn Gresham is making huge leaps not only because of laws, politicians, or enforced changes, but because of the hearts of these community members.”

Senator Collins Honored for Commitment to Financial Issues

Illinois State Senator Jacqueline Collins

Springfield, IL—March 9, 2011—In light of the centennial of International Women’s Day, Illinois Treasurer Dan Rutherford is giving Senator Jacqueline Collins (D-Chicago) a lifetime achievement award for her tenacity in pursuing and promoting financial fairness, literacy, education and awareness.

“It is with great honor that I present my good friend and former Senate colleague Jacqui Collins with this special award,” Rutherford said. From fighting for people facing home foreclosures, to demanding expanded consumer education in the schools, to initiating a restriction on state pension fund investment in companies based in the Sudan, Collins has spent a lifetime dedicated to improving the human conditions of women—and truly all people—in Illinois.”

Collins list of accomplishments is long. She pushed for payday reform, an extension of the statute of limitations for civil and criminal prosecution of sex crimes against children, a law to fight human trafficking of women, and legislation preventing public utility companies from shutting off heat to low-income families in the winter.

Congratulations Jacqui!

Enhancement group to provide entertainment. Light food and beverages were served as well.

Even more noteworthy was BoA’s contribution the non-profit group “What About The Children Here” or (WATCH).

adjacent to the newly developed 50 acre Chatham Market site, Bank of America (BoA) celebrated the grand opening of its newly designed market-focused branch. To help with the celebration, BoA partnered with Simeon Career Academy and the Artist Skill WATCH was created with a single mother’s vision of insuring that young men be productive citizens, utilizing their talents in the community. WATCH has partnered with SOS Children’s Village since 2009.

Congratulations branch manager Johnny Wilbon and BoA .

City of Chicago SARFS Auburn Gresham Homes

Small Accessible Repairs For Seniors (SARFS) is a program for senior citizens who earn no more than 80% of the medium income—adjusted for family size—and who are at least 60 years of age. Qualified recipients may be homeowners or renters living in a 1– 4 unit building.

In 2010, The Greater Auburn-Gresham Development Corporation (GADC) in partnership with Team Construction completed 55 homes as part of the SARFS program. Call (773) 483-3696 for more details.
