John G. Shedd Aquarium Work-Study 2010 APPLICATION

Shedd Aquarium's work-study program for Chicago teens offers a variety of fun and unique paid learning opportunities during the summer or on weekends during the school year. Three categories are available to students: gardening (Green Gardeners); guest experience (Shedd Ambassadors); and interpretation (Young Naturalists). Each opportunity supports the aquarium's mission of connecting people to the living world, inspiring them to make a difference. Applicants should possess or want to develop strong communication skills and a connection to Shedd's collection and mission, and have the desire to work in a team environment interacting with the public.

Green Gardeners

Individuals interested in gardening will work with Shedd's horticulturist to maintain the aquarium's award-winning dune gardens. These teens will also be given interpretation tools they can use to connect guests to conservation messages and sustainable practices while in the gardens or in the aquarium's exhibits.

Shedd Ambassadors

Individuals interested in the floor operations of an aquarium will work with Shedd's guest experience staff to master unique customer-service techniques incorporating the aquarium's mission in everyday actions. They will gain insight into the professional skills, problem-solving techniques and fast-paced approaches that are needed to ensure a positive guest experience and a fulfilling on-the-job experience.

Young Naturalist

Individuals interested in sharing animal information with guests will work with Shedd's guest engagement staff to learn the art of connecting with guests while in Shedd's exhibits. They will facilitate theme-based interpretation, play engagements and other education experiences.

All students will have the opportunity to work with Shedd staff and interact with other professionals through career workshops and field trips to natural areas. Note: Participants will have minimal animal contact.
